

Key Ideas and Details

- 4R1: Locate and refer to relevant details and evidence when explaining what a text says explicitly/implicitly and make logical inferences. (RI&RL)
- 4R2: Determine a theme or central idea of text and explain how it is supported by key details; summarize a text. (RI&RL)

Essential questions:

How do characters' responses and reactions lead to change?

How do writers use details & descriptions about characters to help us determine theme-big ideas about the text?

I can identify theme in text by determining how and why characters change, examine character traits and learn important life lessons.

How do you think will you be assessed today?

{Skill: Connection}

In reading we have been working on identifying how and why characters change in texts and their motivation. Sometimes characters change, just like we change, based on influences around us. A particular person could make us change, or where we are in a particular moment, or perhaps a problem we are having could make us change.

Today I want to teach you how to figure out how character changes and description about the character by the author help us determine and come up with a theory about what the theme or life lesson the text is teaching us.

characters change, examine important character traits & learn important life lessons.

Readers can identify how characters change in a story by looking inside the character's world.

- We get to understand a story by getting to know our characters better. One way is by constructing a character map and analyzing four important elements:

I can identify theme in text by determining how and why characters change, examine important character traits & learn important life lessons.

As I read, Miss Rumphius to you, think about:

- What the character is like? (through the author's description)
- What does the character feel strongly about?
- What does the character do during the story?
- How does the author change?
- What lesson does the character learn?
- How does this help us come up with an important theme-theory about the story?
- STOP AND JOT YOUR NOTICINGS!!!

I can identify theme in text by determining how and why

Remember the equation for inferences.

She feels...

- Determined to make the world better
- Adventurous so visits far away places
- Persistent so even when ill she still was set on planting her lupines
- Ambitious to complete her mission of planting lupines

Miss Rumphius

Miss Rumphius is now a caring elderly woman who works as a librarian developed a love of nature, travel, books and art at an early age from her grandfather. Despite not being physically strong anymore she is determined to make the world more beautiful.

She helps others--working as a librarian.

She is greatly influenced by the words of her grandfather who instilled a love of nature and desire to make the world better.

She acts kindly towards others--helping them travel to faraway places in books.

She travels to faraway places like a tropical isle and climbs tall mountains..

She loves to walk in the nature conservatory in the park.

She planted seeds all over her community.

*She changes as a result of what her grandfather told her about making the world a better place. She had to find her life's mission. As a result, she plants lupines throughout her community and instill a love of nature in young people.

She thinks...

She has to be kind and compassionate to her community so she plants lupines all over making it more lovely.

She must follow her life long mission prescribed by her grandfather to visit faraway places, live by the sea and then make the world better.

This leads me to believe that the author is teaching us that we must figure out what we love to do and turn our own passion into something that can make our community better.

I can identify theme in text by determining how and why characters change, examining important character traits and learn important life lessons.

With a partner, turn and talk to your partner about Shirley Temple Wong or another main character you are reading about. How is she changing? What is the influence that is changing her? What life lesson is the main character learning? How does this help you come up with a theory about what the book is really about?

1. Re-read the text.
2. Think about the main character- what he or she is like and how they are changing.
3. Analyze WHAT INFLUENCED the character to change and how that change is helping you determine the theme of the text.

{Self-Assessment Rubric}

Based on today's objective, let's create a rubric to know what exactly we need to accomplish during independent work.

4	Student carefully infers character traits. Student carefully supports inferences with evidence from the text. Student can carefully explain how and why a character changed in a text. Student comes up with an important theory about the text based on how and why the characters changed and provide relevant text based evidence to support my thinking.
3	Student mostly carefully infers character traits. Student supports inferences with evidence from the text. Student can mostly explain how and why a character changed in a text. Student came up with a theory about the text based on how and why the characters changed and provide relevant text based evidence to support my thinking.
2	Student may have had some challenges inferring character traits. Student may or may not have made inferences with evidence from the text. Student may have some challenges describing how and why a character changed in a text. Student may or may not have come up with a theory about the text based on how and why the characters changed and had difficulty providing relevant text based evidence to support his or her thinking.

Readers, as you read you can work on your own personal goal or any other skill that we've previously worked on.

With a teacher:

- Use the graphic organizer to infer the reason a character changed and how that leads to determining theme.
- Be sure to identify the influence.
- Continue working on other skills for reading and understanding!

Independent:

- Stop and jot character changes and the influence as you read. Describe how this leads to determining theme.
- You might want to look for changes in more than one character.
- Continue working on other skills for reading and understanding!

Challenge:

- Stop and jot changes and influences of the main characters in your text.
- See if you can identify the way one particular character influences another. Jot it down in your notebook if you discover it.

You can use this graphic organizer to help you:

Name _____ Date _____

Finding the Theme

Title _____

How did the characters react to obstacles? _____

What important decisions did the characters make? _____

How did the characters grow or change in the story? _____

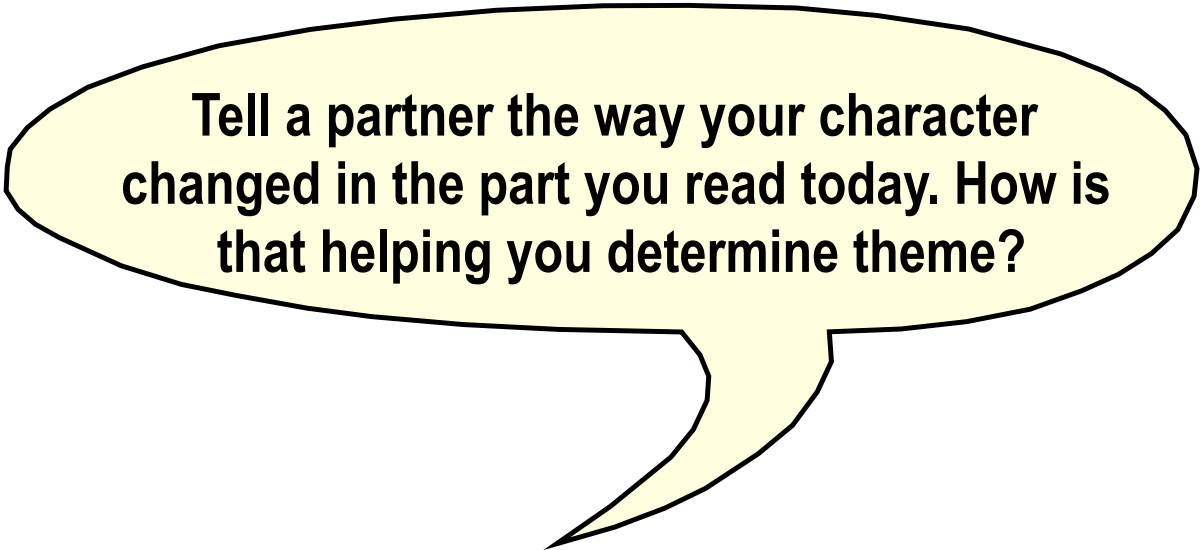

What did the characters learn? _____

Use your answers to determine the theme of your story. Write the theme in the scroll below.
